standard window, which is divided into a yellow and white area. The first one contains each clip you copy, while the second one is used to permanently keep the copied items. The program allows you to make up to 25 clips in various types (text, graphic, date/time or encrypted), and you can rename them, highlight them and paste them in bulk. In addition, you can change the sheet they belong to, set a search feature, use a year planner and even turn off the Windows clipboard. If you are a student who regularly uses a word processor, then you should consider using this Windows utility. However, it is intended for programmers, web designers, IT professionals and people who may sometimes need to review several documents at the same time. This extension is based on the popular Chrome browser and it offers you a way to organize your recently opened web pages in a single window and easily edit them. To do so, you can use shortcuts, hyperlinks, pop-up blockers and filters, directly on the page or through context menus. Another feature of this extension is that you can create a new browser window that displays the links that you would like to read or the pages you want to save. Moreover, you can combine the views of different web pages and switch between them using the buttons in the upper right corner. Finally, the extension features a mode that can block access to some web sites, preventing them from opening in a separate window. Pros: • Stores opened pages in a window. • Allows you to edit web pages. • Allows you to block access to some web sites. Cons: • The interface is a bit complex. • Some functions don't always work properly. If you have been frequently using your mouse to open various browser tabs and then quickly switching between them, then you should definitely try out the smart TabBar extension. It allows you to quickly open several tabs without leaving the current page or switching between them. The extension is based on the famous Chrome browser and it allows you to organize your recently opened pages in a single tab bar on the right of the page or in a separate window. By default, the extension allows you to open three or more tabs at the same time, but you can change this figure according to your

Overall, KEYMACRO is a great clipboard recorder with a lot of useful features. PASTE Like its counterpart, KEYMACRO allows you to select an item from the clipboard and insert it into your current document. This feature is similar to a mouse-gesture and can be used to quickly copy and paste a whole group of images from one window to another. The app uses the last set of items in the clipboard as a template for the new clip and also supports the primary clipboard. REQUIREMENTS: Mac OS X 10.8 or later. KEYMACRO is an extremely good application that enables you to record, copy, cut, paste and import clipboard items to various windows. For those who use the last clipboard entries and want to be able to access and manage them outside the Mac, the program is one of the best. It is a good clipboard manager that allows you to control clipboard items from a simple to-use interface. It also has a lot of customization features that allows you to pick

What's New in the 101 Clips?

The problem with Windows' default clipboard is that it can store only one item at a time, which drastically limits the control you have over your recent actions. 101 Clips comes with a solution that allows you to save up to 25 entries in the clipboard. Greets you with a lightweight GUI The interface of the application is based on a standard window that is divided into a yellow and white area. The first one preserves each clip that you copy, while the second section can be used to permanently keep these items. Enables you to easily manage your clips In addition, you can create a new text, graphic, date/time or encrypted clip, paste clips to the cells in bulk mode, rename and highlight entries, as well as change the sheets and viewing mode. Furthermore, you can use a search function, configure a year planner, clear the Windows system clipboard, turn off capturing, change the text font, backup and restore data, as well as import pictures as clips. Allows you to customize its behavior In the "Options" area you can set 101 Clips to automatically run at system startup, start minimized, stay on top of other applications and create graphic clips during file copying, not to mention configure the keyboard pasting method (e.g. paste letters shown vertically). The simple-to-use tool requires a low amount of system CPU and memory, has a good response time and includes a help file. No errors have occurred during our testing and 101 Clips did not freeze or crash. An approachable clipboard manager that comes with a nice set of features On an ending note, 101 Clips is a multi-clipboard manager that enables you to review all your recent actions without any difficulty. Its set of tools is rich enough for the purpose without being intricate in any way Full Review What's new in this version: * Added a setting to disable the taking of screenshots during the run of 101 Clips. Review: 1. For Those Who Know it's not just a Clipboard! To start 101 Clips we have to press Windows key + R, and type in: "clipboard." We are in a new window, and we can see a list of the recent clipboard actions. You may be surprised to know that the recent actions are displayed on the System Clipboard (Windows 7) or Microsoft Office Clipboard (Windows 8). The program 101 Clips displays a list of recent actions in a single window. We can choose the last action (the one that we've just performed) or choose the desired action from the list. In the first case, the action is copied from the System Clipboard, while the other option uses the Microsoft Office Clipboard. We need to make it clear that a copy/paste command can be executed using either the clipboard
