New Headway Workbook 4th Edition The Headway Teacher, referred to as "T" in the teaching profession, is the standard edition of the Headway - The Professional Teacher's Guide to Understanding, Solving and Energising the Classroom Workbook. 2th Edition.Q: Why does MySQL not store NULLS in varchar columns? Why does MySQL not store NULLS in varchar columns? I'm aware this question has been asked before, but I would like an explanation as to why it is not that simple. It is a PITA (many hours of down time) to use the NULLIF() function to take care of this. It's quite difficult for newbies to get their head around it and one false value ruins the whole. I was under the impression that a placeholder, NULL (which I believe is just a 0 - nothing) would at least mean "don't count this character" (knowing that VARCHAR's still store binary length). I've seen it done in some languages that if a string doesn't contain a certain character it is replaced with the NULL character. A: MySQL doesn't store nulls in varchar columns, because varchar data type is only capable of storing strings. That's a limitation of varchar data type. If you actually want to store null values you will need to use the binary data type. Binary data type contains two bytes of information and is used to store binary, non-text data (for example, images and sound). It is a fixed-length type, which is also often referred to as blob. character map : n \0 \1 \1' \2 \2' \3 \3' \4 \4' \5 \5' \6 \6' \7 \7' \8 \8' \9 \9' \10 \a \11 \b \12 \c \13 \d \14 \e \15 \f \16 BTW, 3e33713323
