Doppler perfusion imaging: spatial resolution and potential for human applications. A new imaging method, laser Doppler perfusion imaging, is introduced. The method exploits short-term changes in the dynamic, frequency-modulated pulsatile laser Doppler signal to record perfusion images. A spatial resolution as high as 3-5 mm in vitro and in vivo was attained. The contribution of dye fluorescence to the signal, the influence of shape and orientation of the detectors, and problems encountered with large vessels are discussed. The high spatial resolution might open new avenues for applications such as determination of fractional blood volume in tumours and estimation of microvascular patency in skin.Clinical applications of maternal nutrient restriction during pregnancy in the United States. Although poor diet during pregnancy has adverse effects on both mother and child, the burden of disease and costs are far greater for the developing fetus. The most significant complication of poor maternal nutrition during pregnancy is the increased risk for hypertension, preeclampsia, gestational diabetes and type 2 diabetes in offspring. These disorders are a major risk factor for preterm delivery, neonatal death and long-term morbidity. The mechanisms by which poor maternal nutrition alters fetal programming are multifactorial, with an emphasis on excess maternal cortisol and poor placental perfusion. Overall, the findings have demonstrated that dietary restriction during pregnancy is a cost-effective strategy, but questions remain regarding its implementation and effectiveness. This review summarizes the knowledge gained from previous maternal nutrient restriction studies as well as additional studies that were performed within the United States and examines the need for additional randomized controlled trials in the United States.Evan Silva Evan Benedict Silveira Neto, better known as Evan Silva (born 26 March 1993 in São Paulo), is a Brazilian footballer. What's new:

Bengtsson, Funomena

Bengtsson is probably best known for being the Director on the films The Social Network, The Girl with the Dragon Tattoo, and The Girl Who Played with Fire. As an indie game designer, he has created the award-winning Matching Numbers, which has also been expanded into a massively successful indie game franchise featuring music by the Swedish band The Sounds.

Given the huge success of games, will this new 21st century technology be one of the building blocks that allows for the creation of a true successor to Persona? Could we see one day more titles based on Persona?
