* Creating text layers and typing. You can create a text layer and then type on it. You can also draw on a text layer using the Pen tool. While you can work with text layers, you're most likely to want to work on a regular layer and then simply type or draw on it. Just as in most graphic programs, you can use the Text tool to create text. When you use the tool, you have a number of options (see Figure 12-5) for entering a text string. The Format Painter tool, discussed in the next section, enables you to enter text into a text layer or canvas. FIGURE 12-5: The Text tool's many options for text entry and manipulation.

Format Painter At the top left of the Layers palette, you find the Format Painter tool. It has a yellow star on it and serves as a pointing device. You can use the tool to move around the active layer, or to edit an object or group of objects on that layer. Follow these steps to use the Format Painter tool: 1. Hold down the Shift key and click the active layer to make it the foreground layer. The Format Painter tool's icon appears as a pointer in the upper-left corner of the image window. 2. Click and drag the pointer over the area where you want to make a change. The brush tool's color palette is active, as shown in Figure 12-6. Just as in the past, you can use the tools to select different types of painting or select a color to make your changes. 3. When you're satisfied with the paint you've applied, click the layer with the brush tool in the upper-right area of the Layer palette or press Ctrl+Backspace to deselect the layer.

FIGURE 12-6: Use the brush tool to make edits to a layer. You can also edit the appearance of text by selecting it with the Direct Selection tool, and then making your edits. * Selection tools (including the Shape Selection and Lasso Selection tools) are discussed in Chapter 14. * Photomerge is covered in Chapter 17. * If you want to select an entire group of objects, click the first selection tool and then hold down the Shift key and choose the second selection tool. #

How to Choose the Right Photoshop Training Course in 2019 Getting a well-paid job using Photoshop is simple. With a career as a graphic designer, you can offer your customers stunning images and stunning designs. This is one of the best photo editing, Photoshop classes and Photoshop tutorials you can get. Just like with anything else, investing in Photoshop training is the smart choice for someone who wants to pursue a career as a professional graphic designer. Why Learn Photoshop Online? Photoshop is the world's most popular graphics tool and the standard for a wide range of photo and image editing projects. Photoshop training involves the use of a number of features and tools. Each feature and tool has its own learning curve. If you're not familiar with these, learning Photoshop isn't an easy process. That's why the best thing you can do is get Photoshop training online. If you choose a good Photoshop training course, it can teach you everything you need to know about photo editing. The courses are high-quality and interactive so you get the best Photoshop online training possible. The best thing about choosing a Photoshop training course is that most of them are completely free, unlike college courses and Photoshop classes in a local classroom. So how should you select a good training course? Well, first off, you need to assess the quality of the course. The most important criteria is whether or not it's easy to follow. The best way to do this is to look at the course's design and user interface. Does it look like a well-designed Photoshop course? Check the course's material – does it provide clear and comprehensive explanations? Does it have practical exercises? If these features are lacking, move on to the course's content. Are the screenshots clear? Do the examples in the course make it clear what the course teaches you? Do the examples make the Photoshop process easy to follow? If the answers to these questions are no, the course probably isn't for you. How to Search for Photoshop Training Courses Finding good Photoshop training courses is as easy as searching on the web. That's why the top providers of Photoshop courses are listed on our website, so you don't have to spend hours looking through every single course provider out there. Q: How to achive a code style I'm a new user and still working on my code. I want to know how to achive something like the following: (remember, I want to make the background of my code "transparent") This is my code: A: This can be achieved with the Use Theme Colors feature. A: What you want, is a 'transparent' font color. But without knowing which text editor you're using, it's impossible to help you. If you're using VS, you can either go to the Options button, and choose to use visual studio theme colours, or you can set the themes settings that you like yourself: Q: Load jQuery hash table with external JavaScript file I want to have a webpage that is pretty much the same as these: Is it possible for me to make a similar page, with a page load of jQuery, that would load those pages in a way as to have a hash table that would work to the URLs? I want it to add a /item/ to the URLs and execute jQuery code to load the jQuery hash table with the URLs in the hash table. How would this be done? Thanks, A: For the first and second websites, the hash tag is used to load a particular page when a user arrives at a particular address. This is the standard practice for websites that don't actually use jquery. The trickchance website uses jquery. I haven't had a chance to look at the third site but I'm sure they are loading something onto the page using jquery and therefore, by the same logic, could be converted to a hash tag to load the corresponding page. HOUSTON -- Texans defensive end Antonio Smith broke his right foot in Thursday's practice and will likely miss six to eight weeks, coach Gary Kubiak said. "It's a big loss," Kubiak said after practice. "He's a big part of our team. We're missing a guy." Smith, who had six sacks in his first 11 games, had three sacks in five games since coming out of the NFL's concussion protocol. He has been a big part of the Texans' 3-2 start. "Any player who comes back from a severe injury, major injury, you expect him to play fast," Kubiak said. "He's a pretty smart, pretty good player. But obviously he's not where we need him to be." Smith signed a one-year deal with the Texans in March after being released by the Falcons. He was due to make $5.8 million this year with $6.8 million in guaranteed money, including a $100,000 workout bonus. Kubiak said the decision to shut down Smith will not be based on money, saying, "We do it on the medical and the health side." Defensive end Chris Clemons is expected to start in Smith's absence. His cap number for the season is $8.8 million, and he would only start if Smith can't play on the field. The Texans must act quickly, however, if Clemons becomes an unrestricted free agent. He would likely command a salary in the neighborhood of $10 million per season. The Texans are picking up league-minimum salary, which for a player their size is about $505,000. "Clem's done a great job," Kubiak said. "That's a guy who's played for us, gets paid minimum, has really played well. We just have to figure out a way to move forward and we've got to hope that we're able to get the type of guys that are able to play and fill the void." Tight end Ryan Griffin returned to practice after missing the past two games because of a concussion. Safety Brian Cushing also returned and said he was fine after missing Monday's game because of a hamstring. "I just want to play football," Cushing said. Tight end Garrett Graham is coming off the inactive list after missing the past two games with a sprained ankle. Rookie wide receiver Cobi Hamilton was cleared to
