Photo by Beata Ambroziewicz[The psychiatric epidemiology in Israel]. In the last two decades, there have been remarkable changes in the Israeli society. Changes in the patterns of living and working have been accompanied by a change in social role and behavior. Not least, the changes in the patterns of family and generational relations in Israeli society has a profound influence on the health and illnesses of Israeli adults. A number of studies have been conducted, among physicians and non-physicians, to examine the relation between these changes, and the health and illnesses of Israel's citizens. Results indicate that the changes have profound influence on the pattern of health and illness, with consequences for the rate of hospitalization and treatment. This article presents the results of a national study that examine the rate of hospitalization and treatment of Israeli adults in light of the changes in the pattern of living. Pictures are emerging on social media of a former guerilla fighter who captured the attention of world football. Tijani Babangida's story is as shocking and compelling as it is inspiring and if the smalltown prospect in Shropshire can pull it off then there is plenty to take inspiration from. The former Nigeria international who plays as a striker for

Charlton Athletic says his career was changed by Ibrahim Amadu and the Courage Foundation – the UK-based charity that supports children with learning difficulties. “I was 14 at the time, training with a bunch of boys who were not good enough for pro football. A talent scout came to our training session, saw my skill and talent and told me he was going to play college football for South Carolina,” he said. “He invited me to his home for Christmas. I remember the night, as he was drinking, he remembered me from the training and asked if I still wanted to play college football. “I remember sitting down and asking about the college football programme at South Carolina and told him I’d like to play. He asked me if I was single and if I knew how to drive. I said I was both and he let me drive his car.” After four months at South Carolina, he said the scholarship from the university fell through and he was back with his compatriots. “He had said he had been playing in a number of leagues around America and Europe, but I asked him what leagues. He said he has been playing in the MLS and the US Open Cup

Dixon Water Products Dixon Water Products is the largest domestic water treatment company in the world. Founded in 1946, Dixon Water has now become a global company operating in markets in more than 150 countries. The company is listed on the Oslo Stock Exchange and is headquartered in Dix Hills, New York. Dixon Water is traded in the United States as an ADR under the ticker symbol DIXI and in the UK under the ticker symbol DIX. History In 1946 Dr. Joseph Dixon founded a sanitary supply company named Sanitary Supply Company, which was then known as Valley Springs Water. The Valley Springs name was dropped in 1964 when it was purchased by Consolidated Water. During the purchase the company operated under the name of Consolidated Water Products, which it remains today. Dr. Dixon died in 2006 at the age of 100. Accolades In 2005, Dixon Water Products was named the sole provider of water for the power plant at the New York Power Authority's Callanan Power Plant. In March 2009, Dixon Water Products and Veolia Water International USA agreed to acquire the water treatment operations of Veolia Water Products USA, Inc. including the world headquarters in Los Angeles, California. The combination was the largest water treatment facility ownership transaction in history. In October 2009, Dixon Water Products announced the completion of the acquisition of Graftex, a manufacturer of high performance UV water treatment systems. The acquisition will include all Graftex facilities as well as all equipment, inventory, and receivables. This combined company will be called Graftex + Dixon Water Products. In July 2010, Dixon Water Products announced it had acquired the wholly owned subsidiary, EnviroGRO Inc. Dixon Water Products is also the distributor for L.M.B. America, the world's largest independent distributor of PVC pipe and fittings. Corporate affairs The primary brands of the company include: Dixon Water EnviroGRO US Water MODERNISM - THE KEY INSIGHTS Modernism has many key areas that set it apart from previous styles of architecture. Here are three of the most important. Aesthetics Modernism is a movement that is defined by its formal aesthetic and statement in design. It marks the rejection of earlier styles like Art Deco and, more generally, Victorian architecture by its pronounced use of the International Style, modernism is hardly surprising in architecture. Shape A statement of design, a statement of intent is Modernism's essential characteristic. Big shapes, tall shapes, sharp edges, geometrical shapes are all statements of design. Often Modernism takes these forms, but not always. Timelessness "Modernism's greatest asset is its timelessness. It is the architecture of a time in which time has ceased to exist. We live in an age of disruption and there are probably more ways to live now than ever before. Modernism is the architecture of the last century." Thus, although Modernism was born in the 20th century, it is more fitting to compare the movement to a current trend. The style of the modern era is probably best described by the current international search for authenticity. Architectural heritage is an important issue for many cities and there are laws to protect this heritage. The pictures below are from the Prague Municipal Office and the architects behind the design were awarded a 7 million koruna price for this architectural masterpiece.

COMMUNITY - THE KEY INSIGHTS Today's society is fast

changing. This fast pace of change puts pressure on all areas of our lives, but it is particularly important for community design. Pioneering ideas, creating new spaces, providing the best environment for interaction. In the previous blog we talked about community design in the “context of time”. The following pictures come from the Turkish National library. The Art Deco style was quite popular with architects in the 1920s, for this reason the above image features the cover of a prestigious architecture journal from 1927.
