its no secret that virtual guitars are the most challenging of instruments to play, let alone make sound. we have spent a great deal of time designing a virtual instrument that can replace any acoustic guitar and at the same time sound realistic. this means that you should have a good electric guitar to start with, since it will be the foundation for your virtual guitar. we recommend you start with a se guitar or an alesis andromeda. then you should get some good electric guitar and amp pedals. you need to know what kind of tone you want to have in your virtual electric guitar, and you should know that amp pedals are a bit tricky to get right. once you have a good electric guitar, and you have a good amp and a good effect pedal, you should be able to make a pretty good virtual guitar. the names of the plugins in the list are in alphabetical order, so you should just scroll down to find the plugin that you want. you can also use the filters that are at the top of the list to find the plugins that you want. if you need more free guitar vst plugins to play with, just go to the guitar effects machine website, and you will find a ton of great free guitar plugins. and, the best thing about the site is that you can join the free membership, and you can download all of the plugins. the free version of moog guitar features the classic moog synth, the moog eleven, and an endless amount of variations. all instruments are provided in kontakt format, so you can use them as standard virtual instruments in any daw, without any additional plugins. the free version of the plugin supports midi and audio input and outputs, so you can connect the synth to your computer, an ipad or iphone, or other midi devices.
